After September 11, many thought a clash of civilizations was inevitable. This book offers a different, more hopeful answer of building bridges instead of burning them. I strongly recommend it.

Jimmy Carter

AFTER TERROR

edited by

Akbar Ahmed and Brian Forst
After Terror
After Terror:
Promoting Dialogue among Civilizations

Edited by
Akbar Ahmed and Brian Forst
To our grandchildren:
Graham, Ibrahim, Mina, and Samuel,
with love
Contents

Acknowledgments x

Contributor Biographies in Brief xii

Part I Introduction 1

1 Toward a More Civil Twenty-first Century
   Akbar Ahmed and Brian Forst 3

Part II The Nature and Sources of the Problem 13

2 The Simple Power of Weakness, the Complex Vulnerability of Power
   Zbigniew Brzezinski 15

3 Dialogue and the Echo Boom of Terror: Religious Women’s Voices after 9/11
   Diana L. Eck 21

4 Closing Chapters of Enmity
   Rajmohan Gandhi 29

5 Benjamin Franklin’s Gift of Tolerance
   Walter Isaacson 36
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>God’s Word and World Politics</td>
<td>Archbishop Desmond Tutu</td>
<td>39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Part III Pathways to Dialogue and Understanding</td>
<td></td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>The Role of the Media in Promoting Tolerance</td>
<td>Shashi Tharoor</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Civilization, Human Rights, and Collective Responsibility</td>
<td>Sergio Vieira de Mello</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Endless Enemies or Human Security</td>
<td>Jody Williams</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Dialogue among Civilizations and Cultures</td>
<td>President Seyed Mohammed Khatami</td>
<td>72</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Transnational Moral Dialogues</td>
<td>Amitai Etzioni</td>
<td>79</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>In Other People’s Shoes</td>
<td>Dame Marilyn Strathern</td>
<td>85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>A Universal Language, without Boundary or Prejudice</td>
<td>Sir Ravi Shankar</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>Dialogue among Civilizations</td>
<td>Kofi Annan</td>
<td>94</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>The Productive Airing of Grievances</td>
<td>Lord George Carey</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16</td>
<td>All of Man’s Troubles</td>
<td>Edward O. Wilson</td>
<td>106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>Turning Enemies into Friends</td>
<td>Chief Rabbi Jonathan Sacks</td>
<td>112</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
18 Security through Dialogue
Queen Noor of Jordan
119

19 The Power of Dialogue: Redefining “Us”
Tamara Sonn
131

20 On Clash, Morality, Renaissance, and Dialogue
Judea Pearl
138

21 The Just War Tradition and Cultural Dialogue
Jean Bethke Elshtain
145

22 Celebrating Differences on our Melting Pot Planet
Prince El Hassan bin Talal
149

Part IV From Concern to Action
155

23 Clash or Dialogue of Cultures?
Bernard Lewis
157

24 The Fellowship of Dialogue
James D. Wolfensohn
159

25 Hard Power and Soft Power
Joseph S. Nye Jr
166

26 Global Governance in an Interdependent World
Benjamin R. Barber
171

27 Getting to Peace: Awakening the Third Side
William L. Ury
179

28 Risking Hospitality
Martin Marty
186

Index
191
The editors wish to thank several people who contributed to this book. First, our students, who are the primary reason for our coming together in the first place to engage on such matters. In particular, the enthusiasm and commitment of David Dore, Lenora Fisher, Vassia Gueorguieva, Adam Lankford, and Matthew Powell to the project confirmed our confidence in the judgment and spirit of today’s student, especially in working to put the principles of dialogue on the ground in the Washington, DC, area. Our colleagues at American University and our deans, Louis Goodman, Dean of the School of International Service, and William M. LeoGrande, Dean of the School of Public Affairs, were supportive and generous in offering helpful suggestions along the way, as were Dean of Academic Affairs Ivy Broder and Provost Neil Kerwin for their support for the development of a conference to promote the ideas presented in these essays. President Benjamin Ladner’s global vision for American University created an especially receptive atmosphere for this project.

We wish also to thank our publisher, Polity Press, and especially Louise Knight for appreciating the concept and shepherding it through the initial editorial process, Andrea Drugan and Sarah Dancy for helping to manage the processes that followed, and Jean van Altena for editing the manuscript in a thoroughly professional and thoughtful manner.

Our greatest debt of gratitude is to the contributing essayists. In making commitments to support and own a vision for a more vibrant future and then making good on them, they wrote this book. It was reassuring to receive this support for the enterprise from such extraordinary people, fascinating to see how each essayist responded to the challenge, and exhilarating to absorb the breadth of their contributions.

Last, not least, we are deeply in the debt of our wives, Judith Forst and Zeenat Ahmed, who have once more indulged us in a project of yet again utmost urgency. Our appreciation for their unwavering support, love, and patience cannot be adequately expressed or sufficiently compensated. They made possible the birth and nurturance of our children and, in turn, their children, to whom we dedicate this book – and to grandchildren everywhere. We hope and intend that they will have the good judgment to steward humankind in a better direction than has our generation.
Akbar Ahmed is the Ibn Khaldun Chair of Islamic Studies and Professor of International Relations at American University, Washington, DC. He is former high commissioner (ambassador) of Pakistan to the United Kingdom (1999–2000), a distinguished anthropologist, filmmaker, and the author of numerous articles and books on contemporary Islam, including Islam under Siege (Polity, 2003) and Discovering Islam: Making Sense of Muslim History and Society (Routledge, 1988), which was the basis of the BBC six-part TV series, “Living Islam.” His Postmodernism and Islam: Predicament and Promise (Routledge, 1992) was nominated for the Amalfi Award, and his book Islam Today: A Short Introduction to the Muslim World (I. B. Tauris, 1999) was awarded best nonfiction book of the year by the Los Angeles Times, and his “Jinnah Quartet,” a four-part project on Pakistan’s founding father, M. A. Jinnah, has won numerous international awards. He has been actively involved in interfaith dialogue and the study of global Islam and its impact on contemporary society. Dr Ahmed has co-edited several books, including The Future of Anthropology: Its Relevance to the Contemporary World (Athlone, 1995). Prior to coming to American University, Dr Ahmed was visiting professor and Stewart Fellow in Humanities at Princeton University and held appointments at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, Harvard University, and Cambridge University, where for five years he was the Iqbal Fellow. He is the recipient of the Star of Excellence in Pakistan and the Sir Percy Sykes Memorial Medal given by the Royal Society of Asian Affairs in London. He was recently appointed Trustee of the World Faiths Development Dialogue by the Archbishop of Canterbury and received the 2002 Free Speech Award from the Muslim Public Affairs Council in Washington, DC. He received the PhD degree in anthropology from the University of London. He was named 2004 District of Columbia Professor of the Year by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

Kofi Annan is Secretary-General of the United Nations, the first to be elected from the ranks of United Nations staff, in 1997. Since joining the UN in 1962, Mr Annan has worked to revitalize the UN through a comprehensive program of reform: to strengthen the UN’s traditional work in the development and maintenance of international peace and security, to encourage and advocate human rights, the rule of law, and the universal values of equality, tolerance, and human dignity found in the United Nations Charter, and to restore public confidence in the UN by reaching out to new partners and, in his words, by “bringing the United Nations closer to the people.” He was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2001. In conferring the Prize, the Nobel Committee said that Mr Annan “had been pre-eminent in bringing new life to the Organization.”

Benjamin R. Barber is the Gershon and Carol Kekst Professor of Civil Society at the University of Maryland and a principal of the Democracy Collaborative, with offices in New York, Washington, and the University of Maryland. A distinguished, internationally renowned political theorist, Dr Barber brings an abiding concern for democracy and citizenship to issues of politics, culture, and education in America and abroad. Professor Barber’s 17 books include the classic Strong Democracy (University of California Press, 1984) and the best-seller Jihad vs. McWorld (originally published by Ballantine in 1995, with a post-9/11 edition in 2001, translated into 20 languages). Professor Barber is a recipient of the Palmes Academiques (Chevalier) from the French Government (2001), the Berlin Prize of the American Academy of Berlin (2001), and the John Dewey Award (2003). He writes frequently Zbigniew Brzezinski is an internationally recognized authority on global security. He was President Carter’s National Security advisor, has taught at Harvard and Columbia universities, and is now a faculty member of The Johns Hopkins University’s Nitze School of Advanced International Studies in Washington, DC. Born in Poland in 1928, Dr. Brzezinski is the son of a Polish diplomat, spending much of his youth in Canada, France, and Germany. He received a PhD from Harvard in 1953 and became a US citizen in 1958. He was a director of the Trilateral Commission and officer of the Center for Strategic and International Studies. Dr. Brzezinski is author of several books on global security and strategy, including Power and Principle: Memoirs of the National Security Adviser, 1977–1981 (Giroux, 1983) and Grand Failure: The Birth and Death of Communism in the Twentieth Century (Collier Books, 1990). His essay in this volume derives largely from his most recent book, The Choice: Global Domination or Global Leadership (Basic Books, 2004).

Lord George Carey was the Archbishop of Canterbury from 1991 until 2003, a position to which he rose from humble working-class origins. As Archbishop he established an extraordinary record as independent thinker and activist – for his courageous support for the ordination of women, which received a chilly response from many quarters, for his support of military intervention in Afghanistan, and for his unprecedented efforts to promote interfaith dialogue worldwide. He was the first prominent Western figure to visit Rwanda, in the wake of the genocide in 1995. He subsequently visited Sudan, Mozambique, Egypt, and other spots in the interest of cross-cultural and interfaith dialogue. He is author or editor of several books, including Freedom and Virtue: The Conservative/Liberation Debate (ISI Books, 2004), The Bible for Everyday Life (Wm B. Eerdmans, 1996), The Cruelty of Heresy: An Affirmation of Christian Orthodoxy (SPCK, 1994), The Church in the Marketplace (Morehouse, 1991), and The Zodiac and the Salts of Salvation (Kessenger, 2003).

Diana L. Eck is Professor of Comparative Religion and Indian Studies at Harvard University. She is a member of the Department of Sanskrit and Indian Studies as well as the Faculty of Divinity. In 1996, Professor Eck was appointed to a US State Department Advisory Committee on Religious Freedom Abroad, a 20-member commission that advises the Secretary of State on enhancing and protecting religious freedom and human rights. Her book Encountering God: A Spiritual Journey from Bozeman to Banaras (Beacon Press, 1993), a comparative study of religion and religious diversity, won the 1994 Melcher Book Award and the 1995 Louisville Grawemeyer Book Award in Religion. Professor Eck’s books on India include Banaras, City of Light (Knopf, 1982) and Darsan: Seeing the Divine Image in India (Columbia University Press, 1996). In 1998, she received the National Humanities Medal and the National Endowment for the Humanities for her work on American religious pluralism. She received her BA from Smith College (1967) in Religion, her MA from the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London (1968), in South Asian History, and her PhD from Harvard University (1976) in the Comparative Study of Religion.

Jean Bethke Elshtain is the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Professor of Social and Political Ethics at the University of Chicago, a position to which she was appointed in 1995. She has been a visiting professor at Oberlin College, Yale University, and Harvard University. She is recipient of seven honorary degrees and was elected Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1996. She is author of Just War against Terror: The Burden of American Power in a Violent World (Basic Books, 2003), Jane Addams and the Dream of American Democracy (Basic Books, 2002), Who Are We? Critical Reflections and Hopeful Possibilities (Wm B. Eerdmans, 2000), Augustine and the Limits of Politics (University of Notre Dame Press, 1998), Democracy on Trial (Basic Books, 1996), Women and War (University of Amitai Etzioni is an internationally known scholar and a prolific author of books and articles on a vast array of social policy issues. Dr Etzioni was Professor of Sociology at Columbia University for 20 years, after receiving his PhD in Sociology from the University of California in 1958. He was Senior Advisor to the White House on domestic affairs in 1979–80. In 1980, Dr Etzioni was named the first University Professor at The George Washington University, where he directs the Institute for Communitarian Policy Studies. From 1987 to 1989, he served as the Thomas Henry Carroll Ford Foundation Professor at the Harvard Business School. In 1989–90 Dr Etzioni served as founding president of the international Society for the Advancement of Socio-Economics. In 1990, he founded the Communitarian Network, a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to shoring up society’s moral and political foundations. He is editor of The Responsive Community, the organization’s quarterly journal. Dr Etzioni is the author of 22 books, including The Monochrome Society (Princeton University Press, 2001), The New Golden Rule (Basic Books, 1996), The Spirit of Community (Crown Books, 1993), The Moral Dimension (Free Press, 1988), and From Empire to Community (Palgrave, 2004).

Brian Forst is Professor of Justice, Law, and Society at the School of Public Affairs, American University, in Washington, DC. Following a distinguished 20-year career in nonprofit research, including service as research director at the Institute for Law and Social Research (1977–85) and the Police Foundation (1985–9), he joined the faculty of The George Washington University in 1989, and then the American University faculty in 1992. He is author of several books, including Errors of Justice: Nature, Sources and Remedies (Cambridge University Press, 2004), The Privatization of Policing: Two Views (Georgetown University Press, 1999) with Peter Manning, and Power in Numbers (Wiley & Sons, 1987), as well as numerous articles, book chapters, and essays on public policy. He chairs the Department of Justice, Law, and Society's doctoral program, serves on the Faculty Senate, and has played cello with the University Orchestra. He was awarded the School of Public Affairs Bernard H. Ross Teaching Excellence Award in 2002. Dr Forst received BS and MBA degrees from The University of California at Los Angeles and a PhD from The George Washington University.

Rajmohan Gandhi is Visiting Professor of Political Science and Director of the Global Crossroads program at the University of Illinois at Urbana/Champaign. Grandson of Mohandas Gandhi, he is an internationally known human rights activist and jury member of the Nuremberg Human Rights Award; a member of the International Council, Initiatives of Change; co-chair of Centre for Dialogue & Reconciliation in Gurgaon, India; and a commentator in The Hindu and The Hindustan Times. He is renowned for his efforts to promote peace between Hindus and Muslims in his home country, where he has also served as a member of the Rajya. He has authored several books, including The Good Boatman: A Portrait of Gandhi (South Asia Books, 2000), and holds BA and MA degrees in economics from St Stephen’s College in New Delhi, India.

Walter Isaacson is President of the Aspen Institute, former President and Chief Executive Officer of the CNN News Group, and Managing Editor of Time Magazine. He is also a widely published author. Mr Isaacson achieved prominence through his journalism and went on to further acclaim as a leading biographer, in his books on such figures as Benjamin Franklin, Henry Kissinger, Dean Acheson, Averill Harriman, and George F. Kennan. His most recent book, Benjamin Franklin: An American Life (Simon and Schuster, 2003), has received much critical acclaim and became a best-seller on all major book review lists.

President Hojjatoleslam Seyed Mohammed Khatami is the fifth president of the Islamic Republic of Iran. Born in 1943 in Ardakan, son of the respected Ayatollah Ruhollah Khatami, President Khatami attended Qom Theology School in 1961, then earned his BA in philosophy from Isfahan University. He entered the University of Tehran in 1970, graduated with an MA, and then returned to Qom to resume his philosophical studies at Qom Seminary. President Khatami represented Ardakan and Meibod constituencies in the first term of Majlis (Parliament) in 1980, and was appointed head of Kayhan newspaper institute by late Ayatollah Khomeini in 1981. In 1992 he was appointed cultural advisor to President Rafsanjani and head of Iran’s National Library. In 1996 he was appointed member of the High Council for Cultural Revolution, which he now heads as President. He has written several books and articles on social and cultural issues. In 1998, President Khatami appeared before the United Nations to propose that the UN designate the year 2001 as the Year of Dialogue among Civilizations, with the expressed hope that such a dialogue would contribute to the realization of justice and liberty throughout the world.

Modern Middle East (Oxford University Press, 1994), Cultures in Conflict (Oxford University Press, 1996), The Middle East: A Brief History of the Last 2,000 Years (Scribner, 1995), The Future of the Middle East (Orion, 1999), The Multiple Identities of the Middle East (Schocken, 2001), A Middle East Mosaic: Fragments of Life, Letters and History (Random House, 2000), What Went Wrong? (Perennial, 2003), and The Crisis of Islam: Holy War and Unholy Terror (Modern Library, 2003). His essays in The New Yorker, The Atlantic, and in scholarly journals have been widely read and discussed in recent years, and are considered required reading for Westerners interested in understanding the “clash of civilizations,” a phrase he coined in a famous essay in The Atlantic in 1990, “The Roots of Muslim Rage.”

Martin Marty is Fairfax M. Cone Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus at the University of Chicago, where he taught for 35 years, and George B. Caldwell senior scholar at the Park Ridge Center for the Study of Health, Faith, and Ethics. Professor Marty is author of more than 50 books, including the three-volume Modern American Religion (University of Chicago Press, 1997); The One and the Many: America’s Search for the Common Good (Harvard University Press, 1998); Education, Religion and the Common Good (Jossey-Bass, 2000); Politics, Religion and the Common Good (Jossey-Bass, 2000); and with photographer Micah Marty, Places along the Way; Our Hope for Years to Come (Augsburg Fortress Publisher, 1994) and When True Simplicity Is Gained (Wm B. Eerdmans, 1998). His Righteous Empire (Harper Collins, 1977) won the National Book Award. His Martin Luther (Lipper, 2004) is part of the Penguin Lives series. Past President of the American Academy of Religion and recipient of numerous awards, including the National Humanities Medal and the Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Professor Marty has served on two Presidential commissions.

Her Majesty Queen Noor of Jordan was born Lisa Najeeb Halaby in 1951 to a distinguished Arab-American family. She attended schools in Los Angeles, Washington, DC, New York, and Massachusetts, before entering Princeton University in its first co-educational freshman class. After receiving a BA in Architecture and Urban Planning from Princeton in 1974, Queen Noor participated in several international urban planning and design projects in Australia, Iran, the United States, and Jordan. In 1978 she married the late King Hussein of Jordan. Queen Noor has played a significant mediating role and promoted international exchange and understanding of Middle Eastern politics, Arab–Western relations, and current global issues at world affairs organizations, international conferences, and academic institutions. In 1985 Queen Noor established the Noor Al Hussein Foundation (NHF), which initiates and supports national, regional, and international projects in the fields of integrated community development, education, culture, children’s welfare, family health, women, and enterprise development.

Joseph S. Nye Jr is Don K. Price Professor of Public Policy and former dean of the Kennedy School at Harvard University. He joined the Harvard faculty in 1964, serving as Director of the Center for International Affairs and Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences. From 1977 to 1979, he was Deputy Undersecretary of State for Security Assistance, Science, and Technology and chaired the National Security Council Group on Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons. He returned to Harvard in December of 1995 after serving as Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs and Chair of the National Intelligence Council. His most recent books are Soft Power: The Means to Success in World Politics (Public Affairs, 2004), The Paradox of American Power (Oxford University Press, 2002), and Understanding International Conflicts, fourth edition (Longman, 1999); Power and Interdependence (Longman, 2000), the third edition of his classic study co-written with Robert O. Keohane; and an edited volume, For the People: Can We Fix Public Service? (Brookings, 2003). Professor Nye received his bachelor’s degree from Princeton University, did postgraduate work at Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship, and earned a PhD in political science from Harvard. A Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and of the Academy of Diplomacy, Professor Nye has also been a Senior Fellow of the Aspen Institute and Director of the Aspen Strategy Group.
Judea Pearl is Professor of Artificial Intelligence at the University of California at Los Angeles, since 1970. Award-winning author of numerous books and articles on the representation of reasoning, he is renowned internationally for his pioneering research on probabilistic thinking, inferences about causal mechanisms, learning strategies, and alternative systems of logic. He is today known more widely as father of Daniel Pearl, a reporter for the Wall Street Journal until his tragic killing at the hands of terrorists in 2002 in Pakistan. Professor Pearl has distinguished himself by choosing to honor the memory of his son by committing himself to dialogue and cross-cultural understanding in the wake of the tragedy, including a series of dialogues with Akbar Ahmed. “Hatred took the life of my son and hatred I will fight till the end of my life,” said Professor Pearl in acknowledging his son’s death as a reason for dialogue. He is president of the Daniel Pearl Foundation, founded largely to promote cross-cultural understanding. Professor Pearl received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from the Technion in Haifa, Israel, in 1960, a master’s degree in physics from Rutgers University in 1965, and a PhD degree in electrical engineering from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn in 1965.

Jonathan Sacks is Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the Commonwealth. Appointed to this position in 1991, he is the sixth incumbent since 1845. Educated at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, where he obtained first class honors in philosophy, Rabbi Sacks pursued postgraduate studies at New College, Oxford, and King’s College, London. Rabbi Sacks has been Visiting Professor of Philosophy at the university of Essex, Sherman Lecturer at Manchester University, Riddell Lecturer at Newcastle University, Cook Lecturer at the universities of Oxford, Edinburgh, and St Andrews, and Visiting Professor at the Hebrew University, Jerusalem. He is currently Visiting Professor of Theology at Kings’ College London. In September 2001, the Archbishop of Canterbury conferred on him a Doctorate of Divinity in recognition of his first ten years in the Chief Rabbinate. He is author of The Dignity of Difference (Continuum, 2003), The Politics of Hope (Jonathan Cape, 1997), Celebrating Life (Continuum, 2004) Arguments for the Sake of Heaven (Jason Aronson, 1991),